Biographical / Historical

Emily Winifred Johnson was born in 1890 in Marion, North Carolina to George Thomas and Catherine Ann Elizabeth Powell Johnson. In 1909, she enrolled in State Female Normal School, and earned her diploma in 1911. After graduation, Johnson taught for several years at State Teachers College in Fredericksburg, Virginia. She later earned a master's degree from Columbia University and in the later 1930s served as Supervisor of Elementary Education in Arlington, Virginia. In the 1950s, Emily Winifred Johnson worked as a public health analyst and later as a research editor for the federal government. For many years, Johnson served as President of the Washington, D.C. Chapter of Longwood Alumni.
