Historical Information

"West Side Story" is a musical that premiered on Broadway on September 26, 1957, with music composed by Leonard Bernstein and book and lyrics by Arthur Laurents and Stephen Sondheim, respectively. It was conceived of, directed, and choreographed by Jerome Robbins. It was also produced by Harold Prince and Robert E. Griffith. The musical, set on the West Side of New York City, was inspired by Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." Two rival gangs - the white Jets and the Puerto Rican Sharks - battle for neighborhood dominance while star-crossed lovers from each side, Tony and Maria, fall in love. The musical was a critical and commercial success, and was subsequently adapted into two separate films. "West Side Story" endures as a musical classic and has been revived multiple times on Broadway since its inception.

Friedman-Abeles was a large photography firm in New York City, NY. Founded on the partnership of Leo and Sy Friedman and Joseph Ables, the firm was regularly tasked with photographing Broadway productions and was most successful from the 1950s - 1970s. Friedman-Ables photographed the behind-the-scenes process, as well as official photos, of the original "West Side Story" production.

Scope and Content
