Biographical / Historical

After the United States entered World War I, Dr. William H. Goodwin contacted the Red Cross in Washington D.C. in regard to organizing a base hospital at the University of Virginia. The authority to organize a hospital was granted, and UVa President E. A. Alderman recommended the appointment of Dr. Goodwin as director. On June 23, 1917 the hospital was assigned number 41. Dr. Goodwin learned he would need to recruit all the supporting staff of the hospital as well as its doctors and nurses. It was also his responsibility to acquire funds to purchase the supplies for the hospital as the War Department had determined that only fully equipped and supplied hospitals would be accepted for active service. Dr. Goodwin contacted the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the U.S, which had collected from its members a substantial amount of money to be used as a war relief fund. The Elks agreed to furnish all of the needed funds and deposited the money with the Red Cross.

Well-qualified officers were selected as well as 149 enlisted men, 49 of them UVa alumni or students. On March 5, 1918, the detachment entrained for Camp Sevier, South Carolina, where it was organized by Major (later Lieutenant Colonel) Julian M. Cabell and no longer considered a Red Cross unit. Two months later after intensive training, Cabell reported to the Surgeon General that the unit was ready for overseas duty.

Finally on July 26, 1918, the Base Hospital No. 41 unit arrived in St. Denis, France, near Paris at the park of l'Ecole de la Legion d'Honneur. The hospital was established in the building used for schooling children of the members of the Legion of Honor. Secured for Base Hospital 41 by the American Red Cross, it was a stately eighteenth century building in a lovely park setting. The school dormitories were converted into hospital wards, and by August 12th Base Hospital No. 41 was ready to receive patients, meaning that the wards, operating rooms, laboratories, and ancillary services were set to function.

The first convoy consisted of 136 patients who were treated promptly and efficiently. The capacity of the building was soon reached and new tent wards were constantly being pitched in the park. Eventually the hospital was equipped to care for 600 patients in the building and another 2200 in the tent wards. One of the most stressful periods was from 4 PM on October 19, 1918, to 10 AM on October 22, 1918, when 693 patients were admitted to an already full hospital.

Base Hospital No. 41 had to contend with the influenza epidemic of 1918. A considerable percentage of both personnel and patients were attacked, and four staff members died of pneumonia following flu. Although not at the front, the unit also suffered from several air raids.

When the Armistice was signed on November 11, 1918, nearly three thousand patients were in the hospital. Two and a half months later, all the patients had been evacuated, and the hospital ceased to function. The unit was demobilized on May 1, 1919.

Scope and Contents

Of unique relevance to the University of Virginia Health System is the Base Hospital 41 collection. It includes: photographs and negatives of Base Hospital 41; photocopies of photos held by the National Library of Medicine, History of Medicine; Base Hospital 41 newsletters; news clippings; medals; excerpts from Glenn B. Updike's wartime diary; documents relating to Chief Nurse Margaret Cowling; a history of Base Hospital 41; "The University of Virginia Base Hospital Forty-One," by the Commanding Officer, Julian M. Cabell; a historical sketch of Base Hospital 41 by Deming J. Shear; correspondence and photos related to reunions; and other archival material.

Processing Information

Archivist Amanda Greenwood processed this folder into MS-17 on 07/01/2025 after it was accessioned.

Biographical / Historical

Carroll Eugene Beach was born February 10, 1894 and was a son of John Ambrose and Margaret Hockman Beach. Mr. Beach was a graduate of Luray High School and Roanoke College and was the only student at that time to receive the declaimers, debaters, and orators medals. He studied advertising and marketing at New York University. On April 18, 1922, he married Dorothy Caroline Long.

A veteran of World War I, he served overseas with the University of Virginia Base Hospital Unit 41 in France. From 1924-1934 he was actively identified with the Association of Advertising Men as president and director. He was a life member and delegate to the International Advertising Convention in Berlin, Germany in 1929. After moving to Luray, Mr. Beach founded the Carroll E. Beach Insurance Agency, later known as the Fred C. Walker Insurance Agency. He was involved in the insurance business 13 years prior to his postal position.

Mr. Beach was appointed postmaster at the Luray Post Office July 1, 1951 and only retired on April 3, 1965 because of his age. During his term as Luray postmaster, there were many changes in the postal service and operations, among these the beginning of the highway post office service in Page County, establishment of certified mail service, zip coding of mail, and the initiation of public cooperation and customer service programs. He was selected as counselor for the Postmaster's Orientation Program and was given the counselor certificate in 1963. Mr. Beach was the fifth member of his family to have been associated with the Postal Service. His father was a rural carrier for 16 years. One brother was a postal clerk and assistant postmaster for 37½ years, another brother was a substitute rural carrier for seven years, and a third brother was a city carrier for 29½ years.

Mr. Beach was a 50-year member of the Pi Kappa Phi Fraternity and the American Legion. He was a past president and former member of the Luray Rotary Club and a member of the Sunset Vespers Association and the Senior Supper Club. He was a member and trustee of St. Mark Lutheran Church in Luray. Mr. Beach was associated with the Christian Herald Magazine in New York for two years in advertising and promotional work and with the American Bible Society for 15 years in public relations and advertising.

Mr. Beach died December 30, 1986 at the age of 92.
