Processing Information

RG-17-1 includes records from multiple legacy collections held by the Claude Moore Health Sciences Library, including the UVA School of Medicine Reports (MS-66), UVA School of Medicine Biographical Files (MS-36), UVA Hospital Professional Staff Files (MS-25), UVA School of Medicine Chapter of Alpha Omega Alpha records (MS-53), and UVA Department of Medicine Housestaff and Chief Residents Photograph collection (MS-62). RG-17-1 also includes materials previously cataloged as separate items in Virgo (such as journals, newsletters, and reports), and materials from semi-processed legacy accessions, including the UVA School of Medicine Council on Medical Education records (Viuh-2015-26), UVA School of Medicine Faculty Files (Viuh-2015-27), and UVA School of Medicine Faculty Minutes (Viuh-2015-28). Bound materials are housed separately from the rest of the collection, and are generally referenced by individual item records (e.g. "BIR-100").

Biographical / Historical

Historical Overview of the School of Medicine

The School of Medicine* at the University of Virginia has been a key part of the University since its establishment in 1819 by Thomas Jefferson. In his early plans, Jefferson recommended the creation of a School of Anatomy and Medicine with a rigorous academic model, where students could attain medical education in nine months, a term that was twice as long as many schools at the time. Students would read, attend lectures, and watch demonstrations, but there would be few opportunities for them to work firsthand with patients, because there was no teaching hospital in Charlottesville. When the University opened its doors to students in 1825, Dr. Robley Dunglison taught all of the classes offered by the School of Anatomy and Medicine. Beginning in 1827, medical classes were held in the Anatomical Theatre, a building designed by Jefferson (though completed after his death) to accommodate a space for anatomical dissections. The study of anatomy was an important piece of early medical education; however, there was no systematic way for medical schools to obtain bodies for dissection prior to the Virginia Anatomical Act of 1884, and so cadavers were frequently procured through illegal and unethical means. Often this involved body snatching from local graves, most commonly those found in cemeteries of Virginia's slave, free black, and poor white populations.

Dunlison remained at UVA until 1833, and during that time he persuaded the UVA Board of Visitors to hire additional faculty for his medical department. In the mid-19th century, the UVA medical school was known for providing a good theoretical education. Academic activities were largely stagnant during the years of the Civil War, when Professor of Anatomy and Surgery James L. Cabell oversaw a Confederate military hospital erected in part on the Grounds of UVA, and later when Charlottesville was occupied by Union troops at the end of the war. In the decades after the Civil War, a period of biomedical revolution began to redefine the practice of medicine. In response, UVA initiated educational reforms to its medical curriculum, gradually lengthening the degree program to four years by the end of the 19th century, and introducing coursework in new fields like bacteriology and histology. In order to create increasingly important clinical opportunities for students, UVA committed to building its own facilities, including a dispensary for out-patient care in 1892 and finally a hospital, which opened in 1901. While science and medicine had entered a period of dramatic revolution, social systems were less inclined to evolve, and access to medical education at UVA remained restricted for many members of the population.

In the early 20th century, the University of Virginia was transforming into a modern university, dedicated to both education and research. At the center of this change were UVA's health sciences programs. The University invested heavily in the School of Medicine, increasing the number of faculty in order to support emerging medical specialties and a new research mission. This period was also marked by the culmination of a fierce debate over the dual existence of state-supported medical programs in both Charlottesville and Richmond, VA. In 1921, a state-appointed commission recommended the relocation of the UVA School of Medicine to Richmond. UVA mobilized alumni and recruited political allies in order to wage a fierce campaign for the preservation of its medical program. They were ultimately successful, with the General Assembly deciding in favor of UVA. The period that followed was marked by continued expansion to the University's academic medical center, including greater specialization across the field of medicine and an increase of students, faculty, and associated personnel throughout the health sciences programs.

Also of note during this time, in 1920 a resolution of the UVA Board of Visitors agreed to admit women into graduate and professional degree programs at UVA. The first woman to graduate from the School of Medicine, Sarah Ruth Dean, a transfer student, did so in 1922. In 1924, Lila Morse Bonner became the second woman to graduate from the School of Medicine and the first to attend all four years of medical school at UVA.

By the 1940s, public confidence in the health professions was strong among much of the U.S. public. After World War II, there was broad support for wider investment in academic medical centers. At UVA, federal grants were used to build new facilities, including the construction of a multi-story hospital tower. However, also at this time, access to education, employment opportunities, and health care at UVA continued to be unequal. With the rise of the Civil Rights movement, a combination of factors including, community activism, federal legislation, and court rulings compelled the University to start removing barriers to access. In 1953, Edward Bertram Nash and Edward Thomas Wood became the first two African Americans to be admitted to the UVA School of Medicine. Both went on to graduate in 1957.

Throughout the second half of the 20th century, the UVA health system continued to expand. A new medical education building was dedicated in 1972. (Originally named for Harvey E. Jordan, a former Dean of the School of Medicine and known proponent of eugenics; the building was renamed in honor of Dr. Vivian W. Pinn in 2016). This era of expansion also saw the opening of a nursing education building, health sciences library, primary care center, and finally, in 1989, a massive new hospital building. The 1980s and 1990s also saw efforts at the School of Medicine to increase access to the health professions among under-represented groups, including women and people of color.

Rapid developments in the health sciences continued to demand new facilities for research and education. The Claude Moore Medical Education Building opened as the new central location for the School of Medicine in 2010. Also in 2010, the School of Medicine launched a four college system, designed to preserve close student-faculty relationships and maintain a high-quality student experience while accommodating increased medical class size and a revised curriculum. Ten years later, the School of Medicine embraced further expansions with the launch of its Inova Campus in Northern Virginia, which provides clerkship opportunities for some upperclass medical students. The first cohort to spend their third and fourth years of medical school at the Northern Virginia campus arrived there in 2021.

*Note about naming conventions: Briefly known as the "School of Anatomy and Medicine" (1825-1827), the name "School of Medicine" was adopted by the Board of Visitors in July 1827. However, shortly later the name "Department of Medicine" came to be used (though some records still refer to the institution as "School of Medicine"). By the 1950s, the preferred name was again "School of Medicine".

Prior to Richard Henry Whitehead's appointment by the Board of Visitors to the position of Dean of the Medical Faculty (as found in the UVA Board of Visitors Meeting Minutes, July 20, 1905), the position of Dean at the UVA School of Medicine was not in use. The appointment dates listed above are derived from the Board of Visitors Meeting Minutes.

Scope and Contents

The UVA School of Medicine records primarily document the history of the School at all levels of the organization during the 20th and 21st centuries.

Administrative records, including annual reports, meeting minutes, planning documents policies, and other materials, document operations, strategic initiatives, and decision making.

Communications records, including newsletters, blogs, websites, pamphlets, publications, and recordings, document events and public relations work.

Medical education and research records, including accreditation files, student records, syllabi, course catalogs, student organization records, commencement records, lectures, and conference reports, document the School's primary missions.

The collection includes a number of records previously described elsewhere (e.g. as part of a former archival collection or as an individual item described in the Library catalog). Among these are a large group of bound items.

The UVA School of Medicine continues to transfer analog and digital records to the Claude Moore Health Sciences Library for inclusion in this collection.

Related Materials

Materials found within the RG-17 classifications are frequently inter-related. Researchers of RG-17-1 UVA School of Medicine records may also want to consult: RG-17-2 UVA Medical Center records, RG-17-3 UVA School of Nursing records, RG-17-4 Claude Moore Health Sciences Library records, RG-17-5 Office of the Vice President for Health Affairs records, and RG-17-6 Department of Student Health records. Potentially Harmful Materials Statement: Materials in this collection may contain distressing or disturbing content in a written, visual, or/and audiovisual format. Viewers should proceed with caution.

Arrangement

The UVA School of Medicine records (RG-17-1) is part of a larger records group for the UVA Health System (RG-17). The School of Medicine records are further arranged into subdivisions, generally based on format. These subdivisions in many cases were chosen to reflect the Records Retention and Disposition Schedules Record Series maintained by the Library of Virginia (LVA); however, in some cases subdivisions do not have clear equivalents in the LVA schema. Some subdivisions (noted as "Series" in ArchivesSpace) are further divided into Sub-Series). Files are arranged alphabetically, by date, or by some other system best-suited to the contents.

Subdivisions in use for the UVA Health System records (RG-17) are listed below:

Conditions Governing Use

Copyright restrictions may apply.

Scope and Contents

Prior to the establishment of the records classification scheme outlined in this document, institutional archives were often organized by their office of creation. Rather than dividing these legacy collections, they are being kept intact and filed under this series.

Arrangement

Department and Legacy collections are arranged into subseries. The subseries are then arranged alphabetically. The arrangements of the files and items in each subseries vary by collection.

Conditions Governing Access

There may be restrictions on access to some annual and biennial reports. Records in this series must be reviewed for personally identifiable information and anonymous donor information before release. This protected information may need to be redacted before access is given.

Conditions Governing Use

The University of Virginia owns the copyrights to the annual and biennial reports.

Scope and Contents

This series consists of annual and biennial reports produced by the School of Medicine and its constituent departments and units. This does not include individual faculty annual reports used for evaluation or review.

In addition to annual reports produced by the School of Medicine, this series also contains several annual reports produced by the University of Virginia's Office of the President.

Arrangement

Annual reports are arranged according to the department or unit described in the reports. Each department is assigned a file. The files are arranged in their series alphabetically by their title. Inside the files, reports are arranged in chronological order by the date of creation for the reports. Annual reports for the School of Medicine as a whole will be placed in a file titled "School of Medicine". The file will be placed at the beginning of the series regardless of its position alphabetically in the series.

Scope and Contents

The annual report contains reports from individual departments or divisions: Anatomy, Anesthesiology, Biochemistry, Biomedical Engineering, Clinical Pathology, Dermatology, Internal Medicine, Microbiology, Neurological Surgery, Neurology, Obstetrics and Gynecology, Orthopedics, Otolaryngology, Pathology, Pediatrics, Pharmacology, Physiology, Psychiatry, Radiology, Surgery, and Urology. Internal Medicine was formally organized during the course of the year with the establishment of 12 divisions: Biometrics, Cardiology, Clinical Pharmacology, Endocrinology and Metabolism, Epidemiology and Virology, Gastroenterology, Hematology, Infectious Diseases, Nephrology, Oncology, Pulmonary-Allergy, and Rheumatology. Ten medical students were dropped for academic deficiencies during 1969-1970.

Scope and Contents

Part I: The annual report contains reports from individual departments or divisions: Anatomy, Anesthesiology, Biochemistry, Biomedical Engineering, Dentistry, Dermatology, Family Medicine, Internal Medicine, Health Sciences Library, and Microbiology. At the front of the report is the School of Medicine Annual Report, 1973-74 and 1974-75, Part II Academic Affairs, Section III Dean's Summary and Recommendations. It states that due to new pressures and the need for better organization in the School of Medicine, and in response to University-wide programs, several tasks were completed by faculty. Some of these are included in the report including the identification and adoption of institutional goals, a report on plans and projections, a financial report to the President, and a preliminary policy report on promotions and tenure. The dean's summary gives information on a variety of topics, but of note is the formation of the Department of Family Practice on July 1, 1975 and a Division of Dentistry in 1974, the completion of the new Health Sciences Library, an award toward the construction of a Primary Care Building, and an experimental or alternative curriculum for the School of Medicine.

Part II: The annual report continues the reports from individual departments or divisions: Neurosurgery, Neurology, Obstetrics and Gynecology, Ophthalmology, Orthopedics, Otolaryngology, Pathology, Pediatrics, Pharmacology, Physiology, Plastic Surgery, Psychiatry, Radiology, Student Health, Surgery, and Urology.

Scope and Contents

The annual report includes a "Summary of Major Accomplishments in Instruction, Research, and Public Service" which highlights a few of the major accomplishments of the individual departments. Dean Norman Knorr mentions a major revision of the preclinical curriculum by the council on Medical Education and a new Division of Geriatrics under the leadership of Richard Lindsay with the anticipation of a special geriatric unit to be established at the Blue Ridge Sanatorium in the future. Currently there are established programs in epilepsy and outpatient Psychiatry at Blue Ridge. Another new Division is Geographic Medicine under the direction of Richard Guerrant. There is a report from the Office of Student Affairs and a break-down of SOM admissions.

The annual report contains the reports from individual departments or divisions: Anatomy, Anesthesiology, Biochemistry, Biomedical Engineering, Dentistry, Dermatology, Family Practice, Internal Medicine, Microbiology, Neurology, Neurosurgery, Obstetrics and Gynecology, Ophthalmology, Orthopedics, Otolaryngology, Pathology, Pediatrics, Pharmacology, Physiology, Plastic Surgery, Psychiatry, Radiology, Surgery, Urology, Roanoke Program.

Scope and Contents

A memo inserted in front of the 1978-1979 Annual Report from Dean Norman Knorr, dated September 14, 1981, indicates that the School of Medicine Biennial Report (formerly Annual Report) is waived this year as the plan is to submit the Self-Study Report in its place. The 1978-1979 annual report includes a "Summary of Major Accomplishments in Teaching Programs, Research Programs, and Public Service Activities" and a report from the Office of Student Affairs.

The annual report contains the reports from individual departments or divisions: Anatomy, Anesthesiology, Behavioral Medicine and Psychiatry, Biochemistry, Biomedical Engineering, Dermatology, Dentistry, Family Practice, Internal Medicine, Microbiology, Neurology, Neurosurgery, Obstetrics and Gynecology, Ophthalmology, Orthopedics, Otolaryngology, Pathology, Pharmacology, Physiology, Plastic Surgery, Radiology, Surgery, Urology, Roanoke Program, Pediatrics.

Scope and Contents

This summary of the biennial report highlights a few of the accomplishments in teaching programs, training programs, clinical service programs, research programs, and public service activities. The School of Medicine did a self-study in preparation for the LCME accreditation site visit held in February 1982. The LCME conferred full accreditation of the program for 10 years. A new graduate program in Cell and Molecular Biology was established in 1982 and a number of new divisions were formed. New units opened at Blue Ridge Hospital and a Travelers Clinic and the Blue Ridge Poison Control Center were established at the University Hospital. UVa Medical Center was designated a Level I Trauma Center in 1982. James W. Craig submitted a report from the Office of Student Affairs.

The annual report contains the reports from individual departments or divisions: Anatomy, Anesthesiology, Biochemistry, Biomedical Engineering, Comparative Medicine, Dermatology, Family Medicine, Internal Medicine, Microbiology, Neurology, Neurosurgery, Obstetrics and Gynecology, Ophthalmology, Orthopedics, Otolaryngology, Pathology, Pediatrics, Pharmacology, Physiology, Plastic Surgery, Behavior Medicine and Psychiatry, Radiology, Surgery, Urology.

Immediate Source of Acquisition

Materials were donated by Dr. James W. Craig on July 17, 1989.

Processing Information

The items in this subseries formed a legacy collection originally processed in 2005 by Jiyoun Lee. This small legacy collection was referred to as the "Reports from the Office of the Associate Dean of the Medical School, 1972-1977, MS-24".

Biographical / Historical

Dr. Craig joined the School of Medicine at the University of Virginia in 1972 as Professor of Internal Medicine and Associate Dean of the School of Medicine. The materials in this subseries reflect major developments of the Medical Center during the early portion of his career at the University of Virginia.

Scope and Contents

Content in this subseries documents the history of the University of Virginia Medical Center from 1972 to 1977. In this period, the University Medical Center was taking steps toward not only the enlargement of its resources - facilities, personnel, and finance - but also its major programs - education, research, and patient care. The beginning of the Family Practice Primary Care Curriculum in 1975 and the projects for the expansion of existing hospital buildings and purchase of the Towers Hospital were remarkable developments in this period. All these projects were planned based on the UVA Medical Center's wide-ranging self-surveys and implemented under the guidance of William R. Drucker, Dean of the School of Medicine and James W. Craig, Associate Dean of the School of Medicine.

Included are reports on the University of Virginia Medical Center from 1972 to 1977 which detail extensive information on the Medical Center in this period, its organization, administration, educational programs, faculty, student, library system, finances, medical center facilities, major activities, graduate program, clinical activities, admission data, etc. Of Particular interest are documents on the Family Practice Primary Care Curriculum that was planned and organized by James W. Craig in 1975. Also present are materials on the Medical Center's expansion project including the purchase of the Towers Hospital.

Materials in this subseries are arranged in chronological order.

Scope and Contents

The records in this series document commencement and graduation events for the School of Medicine. They include, but are not limited to programs and schedules of events.

Arrangement

The bulk of the commencement records are arranged into two subseries. The first subseries contains materials related to final exercises and graduation exercises. The second subseries contains materials related to baccalaureate services. Materials in these two subseries are grouped together into files according to the date of exercises and services. The files are then arranged in chronological order.

Commencement records that do not belong in either of the two subseries described above are filed into a third subseries called "Other commencement records". All of the materials in this subseries are arranged chronologically according to their date of creation.

Scope and Contents

Norman J. Knorr from the School of Medicine is sent the report and asked to review the Draft. This report states that UVa as a "predominately white, southern institution has been trying for several years to achieve genuine heterogeneity by encouraging the admission of minority students, and particularly black students to every school of the University. Partly under the pressure of a 1978 court order, substantial steps have been taken towards meeting this goal and it is the purpose of this section of our report to evaluate our achievements to date." There are two copies of the draft, one with changes written in.

Extent 2 itemsItems are on their original metal reels in cardboard boxes. Film reels are located in Historical Collections and Services' Vault (B224).

Extent 0.089 GigabytesThe film reels were digitized for preservation in 2014.

Condition Description Films are in fair condition. Acetate decay not noticeable and the films are wound on their original metal reels in cardboard boxes.

Conditions Governing Use

Historical Collections and Services must restrict reproduction and redistribution of these materials according to copyright law because the creator of the film is unknown.

Content Description

These items consist of two (2) 16mm silent black and white film reels with a total amount of around 15 minutes of footage. The films seem to depict people exiting a building on the University of Virginia grounds after the 1946 School of Medicine commencement ceremonies.

Mind and human interaction

Unit ID Archival Resource Key

Unit ID Previous Archival Resource Key

Unit ID /repositories/7/archival_objects/59932

Unit Date 1989-2005

Scope and Contents

A journal published by the Center for the Study of Mind and Human Interaction at the University of Virginia. The Center was founded by psychiatrist Dr. Vamik Volkan. Subjects covered in the journal include psychiatry and psychoanalysis. Intended as a quarterly publication; some issues may be missing from the Library's collections. Publication discontinued September 2005. Description of the journal from Volume 4, No. 3: Mind & Human Interaction "explores the unconscious and conscious interplay between the internal and external worlds of human beings. It analyzes current events by drawing on the expertise of an international and interdisciplinary pool of scholars and statesmen, primarily from a psychoanalytic frame of reference".

Scope and Contents

This series consists of the records of student organizations sponsored by the School of Medicine. These records include, but are not limited to charters, bylaws, membership lists, leadership information, significant photographs, web pages, meeting minutes, and audiovisual recordings. This series also includes student publications including, but not limited to, student-produced newsletters, weblogs, and yearbooks.

Arrangement

Student organization records are grouped into subseries according to the organization name. The subseries are arranged alphabetically by the name of the organization. Three additional subseries come after the student organizations in the following order: 1. Medical student class plays and talent shows 2. Yearbooks 3. Other student publications. The arrangements of files and items in the subseries vary.

Alpha Omega Alpha

Unit ID Archival Resource Key

Unit ID /repositories/7/archival_objects/59975

Unit Date 1919-2017

Biographical / Historical

Alpha Omega Alpha was founded in 1902 and is the national medical honor society. It started at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Chicago when a small number of medical students, led by William Webster Root, wanted to foster professional values and good conduct in fellow medical students and sometimes in their faculty. Modeled after Phi Beta Kappa, they stated that membership in the new society would be based on both academic achievement and professional conduct.

By 2012 there were more than 130 chapters in medical schools throughout the United States. The AOA mission statement found on their website indicates that it is "dedicated to the belief that in the profession of medicine we will improve care for all by recognizing high educational achievement, honoring gifted teaching, encouraging the development of leaders in academia and the community, supporting the ideals of humanism, and promoting service to others."

The University of Virginia chapter started in 1919 and was the 23rd member. The first school in Virginia to join, its chapter is named Alpha Virginia. Each chapter may elect to membership no more than one-sixth of the anticipated number of graduates. Those elected must come from the top quartile of students academically. According to the UVa School of Medicine Student Handbook on the SOM website, those chosen from UVa must not only exhibit the necessary academic attainment, but also leadership, professionalism, a sense of ethics, promise of future success in medicine, and commitment to service. At UVa generally 6-9 students are elected by their peers after their second year, and another 17 or so are elected after their third year.

General

Three volumes from the Alpha Omega Alpha records were originally processed as a distinct collection, labelled MS-53. These three volumes consisted of a chapter roll and minutes book from 1919 to 1955, a roll and minutes book from 1955 to 1969, and a treasurer's ledger covering 1922 to 1978.

Biographical / Historical

"Since its inception in the summer of 1967, the Mulholland Society has served as the UVa School of Medicine's coherent student voice. Collectively, the organization's goals are two-fold. First, the Society looks outward, endeavoring to promote the various interests and concerns of all medical students to the faculty and staff of the health system and the University and Charlottesville community at large. Second, the Society looks inward, seeking to provide an outlet for the academic, social, athletic, and personal interests. The Mulholland Society is named in honor of the late Dr. Henry Bearden Mulholland, a distinguished figure in American medicine and a member of the faculty from 1917 to 1962."

Scope and Contents

"Founded in 1964 at Meharry Medical College and Howard University College of Medicine, the Student National Medical Association is the oldest and largest independent, student-run organization focused on the needs and concerns of medical students of color. SNMA has grown to over 5000 members throughout the United States and the Caribbean. Our mission is to address community health issues impacting underserved Americans and to increase minority representation in health professional fields. Through our signature MAPS, HPREP, and YSEP programs, SNMA members work with students from elementary school through college to introduce them to science and serve as mentors. In this way, SNMA strengthens the educational pipeline that leads from elementary school to medical school."

Yearbooks

Unit ID Archival Resource Key

Unit ID Previous Archival Resource Key

Unit ID Previous Archival Resource Key

Unit ID /repositories/7/archival_objects/60011

Scope and Contents

Yearbooks for the School of Medicine have been produced inconsistently over the years. For some early years, medical students can be found in the University-wide Corks & Curls publications (not available in this collection except for 1941-1942; see the Albert and Shirley Small Special Collections Library for additional items). For a short time between 1947-1970, a yearbook for the medical school titled "Biopsy" was produced. During the 1980s, a medical school edition of Corks & Curls was produced. From 1989-2017, a School of Medicine-specific yearbook was produced by the medical students. The medical school yearbook was discontinued after 2017.

Processing Information

Placeholder Series: No content at this time.

Scope and Contents

The records in this series document the organizational structure of the School of Medicine. It also contains records that document administrative reorganizations of the School of Medicine. These materials include, but are not limited to, organizational charts and reports.

Scope and Contents

Copyright restrictions may apply.

Arrangement

The materials in this series are arranged by the department or unit with which they are associated. Each department is assigned a file. The files are arranged in the series alphabetically by their title. Inside the files, materials are arranged in chronological order by their date of creation. Records for the School of Medicine as a whole will be placed in a file titled "School of Medicine". The file will be placed at the beginning of the series regardless of its position alphabetically in the series.

Conditions Governing Access

There are no restrictions on access to the syllabi and course materials.

Conditions Governing Use

Copyright restrictions may apply.

Scope and Contents

The series contains historically significant syllabi and other educational materials (e.g. laboratory notebooks, course notes) used in courses offered by the School of Medicine. The majority of the items in this series are single instances of syllabi from a particular course or professor.

Arrangement

Syllabi and other course materials are arranged into sub-series by course subject or title. The sub-series are then arranged alphabetically by the course subject or title. At the end of the series, there is a sub-series for files that contain materials from more than one course. Within each subseries, materials are arranged chronologically into files.

Unit ID RG-17-1-24

Unit ID Archival Resource Key

Unit ID /repositories/7/archival_objects/59800

Conditions Governing Access

There are no restrictions on access to the course schedules and catalogs.

Conditions Governing Use

The University of Virginia owns the copyrights to the course schedules and catalogs.

Scope and Contents

This series documents the classes offered in the School of Medicine each semester. This series may include, but is not limited to: course descriptions and faculty course assignments.

Arrangement

The course schedules and catalogs are arranged into files. The files are then arranged chronologically by date of creation. When a catalog is recurring (e.g. annually), all of the records in that series are placed together in a single file.

Conditions Governing Access

There are no restrictions on access to the admissions publications.

Conditions Governing Use

The University of Virginia owns the copyrights to the admissions publications.

Scope and Contents

This series consists of publications that were produced in order to recruit students to apply and attend educational programs at the School of Medicine. May include information on programs, majors, schools, and other academic and community activities.

Arrangement

Admissions publications are arranged into subseries by the educational programs to which they are related (e.g. undergraduate medical education). These subseries are arranged alphabetically. A final subseries consists of admissions publications for "Other educational programs" that don't fit neatly in any of the other subseries.

Conditions Governing Access

There are no restrictions on access to the conference reports and programs.

Conditions Governing Use

Copyright restrictions may apply.

Scope and Contents

This series consists of programs and reports that document the history of conferences and symposia hosted by the [major administrative unit]. Programs and reports often contain the following information: lists of speakers, presentation titles, schedules of events, and lecture abstracts. The following conference records are not included in this series:

registration records financial records organization records attendance lists

Arrangement

Conference records and programs are arranged into files by conference title. The files are arranged chronologically. All of the instances of a reoccurring conference are gathered together into the same file.

Conditions Governing Access

Restrictions on access to the records in this series varies between the constituent subseries.

Conditions Governing Use

Copyright restrictions may apply.

Scope and Contents

This series consists of significant material that conveys the history of the School of Medicine, its administration, its accomplishments, its officials or employees. Includes, but is not limited to, scrapbooks, photographs, articles, program notes and documentation of events sponsored or funded by the agency. Also included are narratives; printed, audio, or audiovisual histories; or matters of significant historical importance.

Arrangement

The materials in this series are arranged into 5 subseries:

1. Biographies and biographical files 2. Department histories 3. Historically significant events 4. History essays, articles, and monographs 5. Scrapbooks

The arrangements of files in each subseries vary.

Biographies and biographical files

Unit ID Archival Resource Key

Unit ID Previous Archival Resource Key

Unit ID /repositories/7/archival_objects/60261

Conditions Governing Access

The biographies and biographical files are open to researchers. However, before providing access, archivists must review the requested records for personally identifiable information (PII). This protected information may need to be redacted before access is given.

Conditions Governing Use

The content collected in this series may be subject to copyright restrictions. The copyright of some content may be owned by the University of Virginia. The rights to non-UVA publications are likely held by other entities.

Processing Information

Some items in this series represent legacy content from two collections: "University of Virginia School of Medicine Biographical files" (Legacy identifier: MS-36) and the University of Virginia School of Medicine Faculty files (Legacy identifier: ViU-H-2015-0027).

Legacy collection description from the MS-36 finding aid: "This collection contains biographical information about University of Virginia School of Medicine faculty and friends mainly collected from University of Virginia publications, including the "Bulletin of the University of Virginia Medical School and Hospital" from 1941 to 1946, "University of Virginia Medical Alumni News Letter" from 1948-1973, "University of Virginia Medical Alumnews" from 1974-1991, and "UVa Medical AlumNews" beginning in 1992 and ongoing. Multiple articles from "The Daily Progress" as early as 1942 are also included as are single articles from other publications."

Scope and Contents

This subseries consists of biographies and files that contain biographical information for significant faculty, staff, and students associated with the School of Medicine. Materials in the biographical files include, but are not limited to, resumes, curriculum vitae, clippings, obituaries, articles, and photographs. Some of the biographical files have been assembled by archivists others by various departments in the School of Medicine.

Arrangement

Materials are arranged into files by the name of the person they describe. The files are then arranged alphabetically by the last name of the person. Because of the presence of legacy content from multiple sources, there may be multiple biographical files for the same individual.

"A History of the Department of Dermatology, University of Virginia", by Edward P. Cawley and William H. Kaufman. Published in 1987. Foreword by Peyton E. Weary, graduate of the University of Virginia School of Medicine Class of 1955, and former Chair of the Department of Dermatology. The book covers the period from 1902 to 1985. The first section largely focuses on the formation of the Department of Dermatology (originally known as the Department of Syphilology and Dermatology) and the department's growth under its first Chair: Dudley C. Smith, M.D., whose tenure lasted from 1924-1950. The second half of the book follows the redirection of the department under two Chairs: Edward Phillip Cawley, M.D., whose tenure lasted from 1950-1976, and Peyton E. Weary, M.D., whose tenure lasted from 1976-1993. Much of the book's contents relate to faculty biographies. Also included are lists of Dermatology Residents.

Proposal to move the School of Medicine to Richmond

Unit ID Archival Resource Key

Unit ID Previous Archival Resource Key

Unit ID /repositories/7/archival_objects/60312

Unit Date 1920-1922

Scope and Contents

This file contains articles, reports, and other collected writings focused on the proposed relocation of the University of Virginia School of Medicine to Richmond, VA. In 1921, a state-appointed commission recommended that the UVA School of Medicine be moved to Richmond. This recommendation was prompted by a debate over the best setting for a medical school--a small town like Charlottesville, or a larger city like Richmond. Before the Virginia General Assembly met to vote on the recommendation, UVA waged a fierce campaign to preserve the medical program as it was. The University mobilized alumni, recruited powerful political allies, and printed persuasive literature, such as that found in this file. The campaign ultimately succeeded, and the General Assembly decided in favor of leaving the School of Medicine at UVA.

Conditions Governing Access

Access to materials in this series may be restricted according to the provisions of the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), Virginia law, and University of Virginia policies. Permission to see student records must be obtained through formal procedures established by the University of Virginia that comply with federal and state law.

Scope and Contents

This series consists of the student records for the School of Medicine. This series may include, but is not limited to: applications, photographs, transcripts, and reviews of clinical performance.

Arrangement

The medical student records are arranged into subseries that represent periods of time. The student record is placed into a given time period according to the student's date of graduation or their last day of attendance. The arrangements of the files in the subseries vary.

Copyright restrictions may apply.

Scope and Contents

This series is comprised of directories that contain lists of the School of Medicine's faculty, staff, and students. The directories were created for public use and often include the following information: names, telephone numbers, and job titles.

Arrangement

The directories are arranged into files. The files are then arranged chronologically by date. When a directory is recurring (e.g. annually), all of the reports in that series are placed together in a single file.

Immediate Source of Acquisition

Original Source of Acquisition Note: "University of Virginia Health System House Staff Office"

Biographical / Historical

Original Biographical/Historical Note: "The University of Virginia School of Medicine was established as one of the University's original eight schools when UVA opened in 1824, and in 1901 the University of Virginia Hospital was opened with Dr. Paul Barringer as Superintendent. Since its opening in 1901, the University of Virginia Hospital has expanded its physicians, departments, and Hospital facilities. The list of the UVA physicians from 1951 to 1990 show general changes that took place in the Hospital through these years, including the increase in the number of physicians, promotion process of the physicians, and specialization of the Hospital departments."

Scope and Contents

Listings of faculty and resident physicians, organized by department.

Original Scope and Contents Note: "This [file] is composed of lists of physicians who have been appointed by the University of Virginia Hospital from 1951 to 1990. The list of 1953 is not extant. The [file] contains 39 files in two boxes. [Folders] are arranged by chronological order and names of the physicians are listed by department. Some years have more than one version of the list with handwritten corrections and adding explanation on the materials."

These materials were originally processed as a separate collection known as MS-25, UVA Hospital Professional Staff Files, 1951-1990"

General

This file was originally processed as a separate collection, MS-25, titled the "UVA Hospital Professional Staff Files, 1951-1990". It has been incorporated into RG-17-1, however, its original order and arrangement has not been revised. Box 1 has been relabelled Box 88 and Box 2 relabelled Box 89.

Arrangement

Original Arrangement Note: "Files are arranged by chronological order."

Conditions Governing Use

Some materials may be subject to copyright restrictions.

Scope and Contents

This series contains correspondence, subject files, online resources, and meeting minutes of committees working within the School of Medicine.

Arrangement

The records in this series are arranged into subseries according to committee or department (when the department is holding a general committee meeting). The subseries are then arranged alphabetically by title. The arrangements of the files in the subseries vary.

Conditions Governing Access

There are no restrictions on access to awards, honors, and commemorations records.

Conditions Governing Use

Copyright restrictions may apply.

Scope and Contents

This series consists of records that document awards, honors, and commemorations presented by the School of Medicine. These records may include, but are not limited to, event programs, lists of recipients, and recipient biographies.

Arrangement

The awards, honors, and commemorations are arranged into files. The files are then arranged chronologically by date. When an award, honor, or commemoration is reoccurring (e.g. annually), all of the records in that series are placed together in a single file.

Conditions Governing Access

There are no restrictions on access to the lectures and presentations.

Conditions Governing Use

Copyright restrictions may apply.

Scope and Contents

This series consists of records that document lectures and presentations sponsored by the School of Medicine. These records include, but are not limited to, audiovisual recordings, transcripts, announcements, handouts, and correspondence between presenters and event organizers.

Arrangement

The records for stand-alone lectures and presentations are arranged into a subseries called "Single lectures and presentations". The records of lectures and presentations that belong to a program or lecture series are arranged into subseries named after the program or lecture series. Following the subseries titled "Single lectures and presentations", the remaining lecture series are arranged alphabetically by title. Records in all of the subseries are arranged into files titled with the names of the lectures and presentations. The files are then arranged chronologically by date of creation.

Medical Center Hour Lectures: 2012-2021

Scope and Contents

The Medical Center Hour is a public forum on medical and society at the UVA School of Medicine. The lecture series is run by the Center for Health Humanities and Ethics at the UVA School of Medicine, previously known as the Center for Biomedical Ethics and Humanities, and originally founded as the Program of Humanities in Medicine by Dr. Edward W. Hook, former Professor and Chair of the UVA Department of Medicine. Materials in this sub-series include lecture recordings, handouts, transcripts, program schedules, and posters. Available materials vary by year and lecture. Many of the Medical Center Hour programs were recorded and are available for viewing. Presently the best way to search Medical Center Hour recordings is through Virgo, the UVA Library Catalog: search.lib.virginia.edu
