Biographical / Historical

Class of 1932 College of William and Mary, Ambassador to Brazil and one of the leaders in the 1969 Salzburg Global Seminar.

Excerpts from New York Times obituary:

John W. Tuthill, who served as United States Ambassador to the European Economic Community and to Brazil, died on Sept. 9 in a Washington hospital. He was 85 and lived in Washington.

Mr. Tuthill, a highly regarded career diplomat, was Ambassador to the European Economic Community from 1962 to 1966. In 1964 he issued a warning in a speech to American businessmen visiting Brussels.

Europeans, Mr. Tuthill told them, feared that American business was so powerful that it would eventually change Europe's way of life.

Born in Montclair, N.J., he graduated from the College of William and Mary and received graduate degrees from Harvard and New York University. His diplomatic career extended from 1940 to 1969.

His memoir, "Some Things to Some Men: Serving in the Foreign Service," was published by Minerva Press in 1996. Further information about this individual or organization may be available in the Special Collections Research Center Knowledgebase: <https://scrcwiki.libraries.wm.edu/john-w-tuthill>

Administrative History: John W. Tuthill worked for the Department of State from 1940 to 1969 in various positions, beginning as Vice Consul, Windsor, Canada. Most of his later positions were in Germany and Europe where he was involved with the repair of the European economy after World War II. He also served in positions that dealt with ongoing American concerns in Europe. His final posting was as Ambassador to Brazil. As a private citizen, he was Director of the Atlantic Institute, President of the Salzburg Seminar, and Director of the American Austrian Foundation. He also taught at North Eastern University and John Hopkins.

Scope and Contents

Papers of John Wills Tuthill, a United States 20th century diplomat. The collection includes papers from Tuthill's years as a student and professor, his State Department career, his private career with international organizations and his retirement years. He held many positions within the State Department, mostly in Germany and Europe, with his final posting as Ambassador to Brazil. As a private citizen, he was Director of the Atlantic Institute, President of the Salzburg Seminar, and Director of the American Austrian Foundation. Papers include personal and professional correspondence, reports, photographs, newspaper and magazine articles, and publications by Tuthill and others with associated research.

Series 3: Publicity, Publications and Speeches

Unit ID id302372

Unit ID /repositories/2/archival_objects/401297

Unit Date 1944-1998, undated

Scope and Contents

This series is divided into Publicity, Publications, and Speeches headings. Material includes articles, stories, and editorials in newspapers, magazines, and other publications concerning John W. Tuthill's activities and interests while an employee of the Department of State and as a representative of other international groups. Articles concern his speeches, his reports, his activities, his policies, his career, and other matters. Some articles come from press releases by the U.S. Government and others. Some editorials are written by Tuthill and include related correspondence and responses. His speeches are given to international and national audiences during his career and retirement. Books and papers published by Tuthill, the U.S. Government, friends, peers, and others are also included, often with notes and research. Tuthill's research on "The Hitler Project." Much of this material is pertinent to Tuthill's professional activities and correlate to the material in Series 5 Chronological Files where similar material is also filed.
