Biographical / Historical

Carol J. Bell was a student in the West Virginia University Medical Technology Program and graduated in May 1968 with a Bachelor of Science from the School of Medicine. Her first medical technologist position was at University Hospital of Morgantown; a few years later she went to Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, DC. In 1976, she moved to Atlanta, Georgia, where she worked at the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). For many years she was the liaison between CDC and hundreds of newborn screening clinical laboratories around the world. She retired in 2012 with 42 years of public service. Since her retirement, Bell has turned her interest to family history and genealogy. She has self-published two genealogy books and is a member of several history, genealogy, and preservation organizations.
